

The Harry and Jeanette Weinberg Foundation

GRANTS FOR ISRAEL

2017

GRANTS OVERVIEW

The Weinberg Foundation provides approximately $100 million in annual grants to nonprofits that provide direct services to low-income and vulnerable individuals and families, primarily in the United States and Israel. Grants are focused on meeting basic needs and enabling an individual to live as independently as possible. Within that focus, emphasis is placed on serving older adults and the Jewish community. In addition, the majority of the Foundation's grants serve its priority communities: Maryland, Northeastern Pennsylvania, Hawaii, Greater Chicago, New York City, San Francisco, and rural areas of the United States, as well as Israel. These areas are hometowns representing personal ties to the life and legacy of Harry Weinberg, as well as the Foundation's trustees.

In Israel, the Foundation awards primarily capital grants, including building renovation and construction. Grants are intended to improve the lives of older adults; women, children, and youth at risk; children and adults with multiple disabilities, and the underemployed and unemployed who seek a career track.

In the following pages, the Foundation has identified selected grants that were approved and distributed in Israel throughout the past three years. During that time, the Foundation approved 90 grants totaling $33.1 million. Of the total funds approved, $30.2 million has been paid to date. Grants with this symbol, , may include multiple payments not reflected within this report.

* Includes grants to The American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee (JDC), but only those administered in Israel

Weinberg Foundation Support of The American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee (JDC)

The Weinberg Foundation has a long history of grants serving low-income and vulnerable Jews worldwide, including isolated older adults, at-risk families, and vulnerable children. Much of this support has been directed through The American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee (JDC), the foremost Jewish humanitarian assistance organization, which works in more than 70 countries.

In Israel, the Foundation funds several initiatives through the JDC:

- ESHEL, an organization that works to improve the wellbeing of vulnerable older adults by advancing their autonomy, functionality, and independence.
- TEVET, an employment initiative that works to help the chronically unemployed find and keep jobs and offers career advancement, training, and certification programs.
- The JDC-Israel Unlimited Initiative, providing services, including affordable housing, that promote integration and independence for people with disabilities.
- Teach First Israel, a program that recruits and trains Israel's top university graduates and young professionals to teach for at least two years in high-need high schools and to continue to work as leaders in education.

In the Former Soviet Union, the Foundation's funding to the JDC provides food packages, medical equipment and medicine, and home visits for older adults, including Holocaust survivors.

The Weinberg Foundation began funding this annual trip to Israel in 2001 and has been solely operating and leading the trip since 2007.

The Mission is an educational orientation of Israel and has been specifically designed for prominent business, nonprofit, philanthropic, and government leaders. In addition to visiting religious and historical sites, participants have the opportunity to meet with major Israeli political, business, government, and community representatives. Site visits include social-service agencies funded by the Foundation, which provides approximately $12 million annually to Israeli nonprofits.

In 2008, the Foundation launched the Alumni Scholars Program. This program includes an event featuring an expert speaking on the latest issues in Israel and the region. Mission Alumni also receive book mailings, an alumni directory, and invitations to reunion dinners. Nearly 600 Alumni now remain connected through this network, which has produced tangible benefits for the community at-large, including partnerships and initiatives rooted in Mission participants' shared experiences in Israel.
