MISSION

The Harry and Jeanette Weinberg Foundation is dedicated to assisting the poor through operating and capital grants to direct service organizations primarily located in Maryland, Hawaii, Northeastern Pennsylvania, New York, Israel, and the Former Soviet Union. These grants focus on meeting basic needs such as shelter, nutrition, health, socialization, and enhancing an individual's ability to meet those needs. Within that focus, emphasis is placed on older adults and the Jewish community.

From Vision To Legacy

THE STORY OF HARRY AND JEANETTE WEINBERG AND THE FOUNDATION THEY CREATED

Harry Weinberg (1908-1990)
Jeanette Weinberg (1909-1989)

Harry Weinberg's 30-year old parents, Joseph and Sarah Weinberg, set out in 1911 from their home in Sambor, in the Galicia region of the Pale of Settlement (then within the Austro-Hungarian Empire), for the land of opportunity—the United States of America. Harry, then three, was the second of the four children (three boys and one girl) who joined Joseph and Sarah Weinberg on that voyage. Three more boys were born to the couple after they arrived in the U.S. The seven children, in birth order, were Henry, Harry, Betty, William, David, Nathan, and Sidney.

The Weinberg family came to America with extremely modest means. Harry and his siblings grew up knowing firsthand what it was like to have little money but also, gradually, understood that it took hard work and discipline to escape poverty.

For Harry, business was a talent learned early in life. At the age of 10, the young entrepreneur could be seen on the streets of downtown Baltimore selling souvenirs to parade-goers celebrating the end of World War I. Harry worked for several years in his father's body-and-fender shop, but eager to strike out on his own, he left home in his teens to seek his own fortune.

The rest is a Horatio Alger-like story of ever-increasing wealth accumulation. Although he had no formal education after the sixth grade, the assiduous application of his innate genius and outstanding work ethic allowed him to accumulate a vast fortune. For portions of the 1950s and 1960s, he headed a diverse intra-urban transportation empire, owning mass transit bus lines in New York, Scranton, Dallas, and Honolulu. He accumulated an even larger fortune in securities and real estate. At the time of his death in 1990, he was the largest single real estate investor in Hawaii.

But through it all, Harry Weinberg never forgot his roots as a poor immigrant child in Baltimore. In Harry's mind, he sought wealth for the benefit of, in his words, "the poor people." During the late 1930s, while still a young married man with an infant son, he unhesitatingly signed affidavits of support, pledging his then modest assets to enable many German Jews to reach safe haven in America. In 1959, he created The Harry and Jeanette Weinberg Foundation as his long-term vehicle for consistent charitable activity that would continue long into the future after he and Jeanette were gone.

Harry Weinberg died on November 4, 1990, little more than a year after his beloved wife, Jeanette, passed away. Jeanette Weinberg had been a talented painter and compassionate philanthropist. Harry and Jeanette are survived by their son, Morton, and four grandchildren. The Harry and Jeanette Weinberg Foundation continues to grow and support a myriad of public charities throughout the world. Today, the Foundation is one of the largest private foundations in the United States. The legacy of Harry and Jeanette Weinberg lives on in the good work of their foundation.

Year in Review

The Foundation's Annual Report not only reviews the past year's activities, but also informs readers of recent changes and new matters. As the pages that follow provide ample details about much of what the Foundation did in the past fiscal year (ending February 28, 2010), we will use this brief message primarily to inform readers about developments in the new fiscal year.

Perhaps most important of all, the Foundation has changed its leadership structure. As of February 23, 2010—the tail end of fiscal year 2010—we have a new president and a separate new board chair. Since the passing of Harry Weinberg on November 4, 1990, a single individual held both positions simultaneously, first Bernard Siegel for 15 years from 1990-2005, and then Shale D. Stiller for five years from 2005-2010. Now, the Foundation's president is Rachel Garbow Monroe, who previously served as the Foundation's chief operating officer for five years. Rachel runs the Foundation on a day-to-day basis and "leads the charge" on most matters. Donn Weinberg, who has served the Foundation full-time since 1993 and as a trustee since 2002, is now both executive vice president and board chair. The board chair must be a trustee, presides over board meetings, and serves as a "good-will ambassador" for the Foundation. The board chair position will rotate every three years to a different trustee; the next rotation will be on March 1, 2013. The other four trustees—Alvin Awaya (based in Hawaii), Barry I. Schloss, Robert T. Kelly, Jr., and Judge Ellen M. Heller—continue to remain actively and passionately involved, and the end-result is a true team effort and a relatively flat leadership structure among the trustees.

We welcome a new trustee—Judge Ellen M. Heller—who was designated by Harry Weinberg in the Foundation's charter to succeed Shale Stiller (her husband) as a trustee. Already she is contributing to the Foundation's decision-making with her vast experience as an Administrative Judge of the Baltimore City Circuit Court and immediate past president, and current board chair, of the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee. Those experiences and others richly inform her perspectives on the poverty-related issues and other matters with which we grapple each day.

From a financial resources standpoint, the past fiscal year ending February 28, 2010 presented challenges and opportunities. From an operational standpoint, our greatest challenge was managing the nine-month pause in our acceptance of letters of inquiry. The underlying reason for the pause was that so much of our grantmaking already was pre-committed, and there was little in new (uncommitted) funds still to be authorized. In a sense, we had outpaced ourselves in authorizing grants, particularly multi-year commitments, whether of the capital, general operating, or program types. In July 2010, the Foundation returned to its pre-November 2008 practice of accepting letters of inquiry on a continuous rolling basis instead of on a grant cycle. For the two fiscal years ending February 28, 2010 and 2011, the Foundation had available only $21 million in new dollars to allocate out of a combined, two-year grant budget of approximately $200 million. As a result, even after the pause ended, the Foundation had to become extremely selective in making its remaining grant commitments. This constraint affects the current fiscal year, is less of a problem in the fiscal year ending February 29, 2012, and thereafter dissipates.

Our greatest opportunity during that long pause was the chance for the Trustees and staff at the Foundation to drill even deeper than usual into the evaluation of the grants that the Foundation already had made and to make changes, if appropriate. The additional information obtained and the lessons learned are helping us to sharpen our focus and improve the quality of our grantmaking. Having stability within our program staff has helped. We continue to benefit from the contributions of our seven Program Directors—Phyllis Bloom, Stan Goldman, Amy Gross, Marci Hunn, Amy Kleine, and Michael Marcus in our Baltimore office, and Gailene Wong in our Hawaii office.

One change we made among the program directors in the Baltimore office is the development of “cross-training” in grant subject matter areas. As before, each program director has one or more subject areas for which he or she primarily is responsible. What is new is that each program director also has one or more subject areas for which he or she secondarily is responsible. Cross-training serves three purposes. First, it helps the Foundation effectively work through a program director’s temporary absence, whether for maternity or disability leave or vacation. Second, it reduces disruption to the grantmaking process if a program director leaves permanently. Third, cross-training broadens and enriches the perspective of each program director and highlights the interconnectedness among various grant areas.

We continue to be pleased by the success of many of the Foundation’s other initiatives, including the Maryland Small Grants Program, the Employee Giving Program, the Weinberg Fellows Program, and the Maryland Influentials Mission to Israel—each of which is discussed in this Annual Report. Some of our recent grants deserve special mention. In the new fiscal year, the Foundation authorized a five-year, $10 million grant to the Conference on Material Claims Against Germany to help aging Holocaust survivors in North America meet basic needs for shelter, food, and medical care. In addition, we authorized a $10 million capital grant toward a more than $30 million project to renovate and expand Levindale Hebrew Geriatric Center & Hospital, Baltimore’s Jewish nursing home and rehabilitation hospital. More about those grants in next year’s Annual Report.

On a personal note, the two of us are honored and excited about our new roles and the opportunity presented to us to work with the entire board and staff to make smart grants to many wonderful nonprofit organizations that help thousands of deserving people in need; to protect and enhance the Foundation’s corpus of securities and real estate that make our grantmaking possible; and to continue to work with other partners in philanthropy, government, and business to help make the world at least a little bit better.

Sincerely,

Donn Weinberg, Chairman

HARRY WEINBERG's lifelong philosophy—and the guiding principle for the Foundation's Trustees—rests on the famous Talmudic saying: "If all the afflictions of the world were assembled on one side of the scale and poverty on the other, poverty would outweigh them all."

The Weinberg Foundation's grants are focused on meeting basic needs such as housing, nutrition, health, and socialization and on enhancing an individual's ability to meet those needs through education and work. Within that focus, the major priorities are the needs of older adults and the Jewish community.

The Foundation emphasizes:

- Meeting basic needs for those who are older, disabled, hungry, or in need of medical care;
- Building self-sufficiency through workforce development, education, and aid to families and the homeless; and
- Providing general community support.

The Trustees believe that the most effective use of funds is through capital and operating grants to direct service organizations with a proven track record of assisting the poor and vulnerable. The Foundation does not make direct gifts to individuals. In most cases, the Foundation also does not make grants for debt reduction, annual appeals, or endowments. By charter, the Foundation is prohibited from giving funds to colleges, universities, and cultural institutions. Because of its commitment to direct service organizations, the Foundation does not support think tanks, research organizations, or advocacy groups.

PSALM 71:9

THE HARRY AND JEANETTE WEINBERG FOUNDATION

The Harry and Jeanette Weinberg Foundation allocates the largest portion of its grants budget to the support of older adults. No other American foundation of similar size has emphasized care for poor older adults to this extent. There are several reasons for the Foundation's large allocation to older adults:

- Harry Weinberg frequently spoke of his empathy for those who struggled all of their lives to provide for their families but because of advancing age, illness, and frailty, could no longer properly care for themselves and their spouses.
- The number of older adults who need some type of assistance is increasing exponentially. Longer life expectancies, greater financial need, health care costs, and isolation from family members have exacerbated the problem. Many poor older adults require assistance with the basic necessities of life such as safe and affordable housing, sufficient nutrition and health care, long-term care, increased social connections, and opportunities to become more active in their communities.
- Rabbi Abraham Joshua Heschel once said, "A test of a people is how it behaves toward the old. It is easy to love children. Even tyrants and dictators make a point of being fond of children. But the affection and care for the old, the incurable, the helpless are the true gold mines of a culture." Harry Weinberg would have agreed.

The Foundation makes grants to support low- and moderate-income older adults mostly in the United States, Israel, and the former Soviet Union. Proposals from anywhere in the U.S. may be considered, although preference is given to Maryland, Northeastern Pennsylvania, Hawaii, and other cities (e.g., New York) with large poor older adult populations.

GOALS

The Foundation's major goal continues to be provision of direct services to poor older adults to help them live dignified, meaningful, and engaged lives in the community and to maintain their independence for as long as possible.

PRINCIPLES FOR GRANTMAKING

The Foundation has identified the following principles to guide grantmaking for the older adults portfolio.

Serve the poorest. Poverty among older adults is growing. All grants must target populations below the area median income level, with emphasis on helping those at the lowest income levels.

Serve the frailest. In addition to low-income, frailty makes older adults extremely vulnerable. The Foundation prioritizes proposals that help older adults with the greatest needs.

Address the most basic needs. The Foundation focuses its support on organizations or programs addressing the most basic needs such as food, housing, and income security, as well as long-term care. Basic needs also include support for activities of daily living and initiatives to maintain functional status by delaying the onset of disabilities.

Build the field. The Foundation focuses on grants which might help to "build the field" of supports and services for poor older adults. "Building the field" is illustrated by strong collaborations at the community level with other organizations' ability to leverage or strengthen other resources, testing of a new model for replication, and promotion of systems of care.

CAPITAL AND PROGRAM PRIORITIES

The Foundation has identified seven priority areas for capital grants and operating or program grants within the older adults portfolio.

CAPITAL GRANTS

Residential care facilities. The Foundation makes capital grants to residential care facilities, particularly nursing homes and assisted living/dementia care facilities, which are implementing “culture change.” The culture change model strives to make residential care facilities more home-like. These homes have a “person-centered” philosophy or approach, which involves individuals in their service planning, focuses on individuals’ strengths as opposed to their deficits, and allows individuals to make decisions about how they live their daily lives. The individual should be at the center of all care plans and decisions.

Housing construction and repair.

Construction and rehabilitation of housing, including independent living facilities for older adults are of great interest to the Foundation (e.g., HUD 202 apartments and low-income tax credit-financed units). Home repair and home modification programs also are of interest. When older adults live in safe, accessible, and affordable housing, they can age more securely and happily in the setting of their choice. Housing construction and repair projects should be based on universal design and smart growth principles.

Community-based facilities. The Foundation funds the construction, expansion, and renovation of senior centers, adult day program sites, shared use sites, and other facilities that provide non-institutional services and supports to older adults outside of the home. Operating or program grants to support these facilities are also considered. Priority is given to those facilities offering higher-level interventions such as help with activities of daily living, health care, and medical monitoring. Capital projects for community-based facilities should be based on universal design and smart growth principles.

GENERAL OPERATING OR PROGRAM GRANTS

Community-based services and supports to meet basic needs. Community-based services and supports are essential to help older adults remain independent in the community. Such services are low-cost compared with institutional care but are not sufficiently covered by public or private sources. This area specifically focuses on basic needs and higher-level interventions. Home care to help with activities of daily living such as home health or personal care is of special interest. Because maintenance of functional status is central to independence, interventions to delay the onset or progression of disability or dementia also are indispensable. Food security—meal delivery, congregate meals, and food pantries for seniors—also fits with this priority but should be combined with a comprehensive program offering other in-home or in-community services.

Informal caregiver support. Programs providing information and resources for unpaid caregivers, including friends and family, qualify for funding from the Foundation. Respite and training are key needs among caregivers. The Foundation increasingly has focused on informal caregiver support via the Family and Informal Caregiver Support Program which is providing $8.2 million in grants to 14 projects in 9 states over the course of three years. In general, new proposals for caregiver support will not be approved outside of the Family and Informal Caregiver Support Program.

Promotion of professional long-term care workforce. By 2016, it is projected that the U.S. will need four million new direct care workers to assist seniors and individuals with disabilities. This gap between supply and demand for workers will widen through 2030 as the baby boom generation ages. In addition to increasing the sheer numbers of direct care workers, the quality of those workers must improve. Efforts to improve quality must be multi-faceted, addressing enhanced training for employees and management, better wages, improved job retention, and healthier workplace culture. This effort overlaps with the Foundation's workforce development goals to help individuals obtain and keep career track employment.

Enrollment in available benefits programs. Many federal, state, and local programs provide important direct services for vulnerable populations. Many individuals eligible for these programs are not enrolled because of lack of awareness, stigma associated with enrolling in government programs, requirements to renew enrollment, difficulty in obtaining information on multiple programs from a single source, and avoidance of dealing with issues until a crisis occurs. The Foundation seeks to improve the overall well-being of low-income older adults by helping them access a broad array of services in addition to public benefits. This service array may include employment training, job placement, debt counseling, financial literacy, foreclosure assistance, reverse mortgage counseling, renter assistance, and health insurance counseling. Programs that provide individualized face-to-face outreach, support, or legal representation are included.

2010 FUNDING HIGHLIGHTS

Govans Ecumenical Development Corporation (GEDCO):

$2,000,000

The Foundation made a grant of $2,000,000 to GEDCO for a new Harry and Jeanette Weinberg Green House Residence at Stadium Place in East Baltimore. The Weinberg Green House residence will be a 42,525 square foot building featuring 47 private, and one dual occupancy rooms. The rooms will be divided into four "households" on four floors, with 12 rooms to a floor. Each floor or residence will be arranged around a large common area called "The Hearth." The small nature of the households will allow older adults to move easily from their rooms to the Hearth area, which includes a kitchen where meals are cooked throughout the day, a living room with a fireplace, and a dining room where the older adults and staff eat together. The residents will control their own schedules and participate in the life and rhythms of the home as much as they desire and to the best of their abilities. The Residence will feature plenty of outdoor space, including porches overlooking a newly rebuilt baseball field on the site of the old Orioles Memorial Stadium (a project of the Cal Ripken Sr. Foundation), as well as a small lake, a new YMCA, shops, and a planned medical building across a small open space.

The goal of the Green House model is to help older adults "continue to live life to its fullest, irrespective of any physical or mental decline." Although residents receive assistance and support with activities of daily living and clinical care, that assistance and care is not the central focus of their lives. The model fundamentally transforms the philosophy of care, the architecture, and the organizational structure that exists in previously traditional long-term care organizations. It combines small homes, or in this case floors, with the full range of personal care and clinical services expected in high-quality nursing homes. The intention is that the "Shahbazim" (universal care workers) and the residents continue to enjoy life to the fullest extent possible as they develop strong relationships with each other.

The Green House homes serve private pay residents, but a core element of the mission is to serve Medicaid-eligible and other low-income individuals, regardless of their ability to pay. GEDCO estimates that over the life of the building at least 1,000 people will be residents and a majority of them will be eligible for Medicaid reimbursement. This will be the second urban Green House project in the country.

Institute on Aging (IOA): $1,500,000

The Foundation made a grant of $1,500,000 to support the construction of the IOA Senior Campus. This new facility is designed to offer low-income, frail older adults in San Francisco's Richmond district access to affordable health care, housing, and supportive services in a central location. The building is a prototype for the current discussions underway throughout the country on how best to combine affordable housing and services for low-income and independent, but potentially frail, older adults.

The Senior Campus is being developed jointly by two well-known, well-regarded nonprofits: Bridge Housing and IOA. The Senior Campus is really a single, large building with six stories, including 150 units of affordable housing on the top four floors. Of the 150 independent living apartments, 35% are specifically intended for older adults eligible for the PACE program, a very successful day health program for nursing home-eligible older adults. All of the apartments will be available to older adults with incomes of less than 30% of the area median income. On the lower two levels, IOA will provide several programs, including the PACE program (Program for All-Inclusive Care for the Elderly), a geriatric medical practice, extensive social services, a day health program for disabled seniors who are non-nursing home-eligible, a daily lunch program, IOA's Meals on Wheels headquarters, a theater, conference rooms, and IOA's arts program.

Aging Care Connections: $250,000

The Foundation provided a grant to Aging Care Connections, on behalf of the Illinois Transitional Care Consortium (ITCC). ITCC is a coalition of Illinois Case Coordination Units, hospitals and other service delivery organizations, known as the Bridge Program. The Bridge Program provides support for low-income, frail seniors as they make the transition from hospital to home after discharge. Using specially designated and trained social workers, the Bridge Program creates an entry point for services by increasing access to formal services, by decreasing the time between discharge and the start of services, and by improving communication among medical and social service providers. This program should reduce re-hospitalizations and emergency department visits by improving adherence to post-discharge medical and social service care directives. Because the participating organizations and hospitals are in urban, suburban, and rural areas, the project will identify best strategies for serving diverse populations of older adults, including older adults speaking limited English and older adults living in underserved areas. During the grant period, the Bridge Program will serve 2,500 older adults 60+ years of age (and their caregivers) who are at risk for post-discharge complications and re-hospitalization.

At the heart of this project are social workers known as "Bridge Care Coordinators" who will facilitate the transition and post-discharge community-based needs of frail older adults and their caregivers.

Participating organizations include three Illinois Case Coordination Units: Aging Care Connections (serves LaGrange and the Southwest suburbs of Chicago); Solutions for Care (serves the Berwyn/Cicero community, a mostly very low-income Latino community in the near Western suburbs); Shawnee Alliance for Seniors (serves Southern Illinois, including the Carbondale area), and the Older Adults Program at Rush University Medical Center. The participating hospitals include: Rush Medical Center, LaGrange Memorial Hospital, McNeal Hospital, Memorial Hospital of Carbondale, and Herrin Hospital in Herrin, Illinois.

The Family & Informal Caregiver Support Program RFP

Throughout the United States, there are ever-increasing numbers of low-income older adults who need assistance from formal and informal caregivers. According to AARP (the American Association of Retired Persons), as many as 30 million adults provide ongoing care that is critical in helping friends and loved ones with debilitating illnesses remain in their homes, in other community settings, or to reside comfortably in a facility providing long-term services and supports. It is estimated that at least 75% of all long-term care received by older adults in the United States is provided by family members and friends, and many do not consider themselves caregivers. The impact of caregiving for an older family member or friend may lead to increased financial, physical, and emotional strain for caregivers.

The Foundation believes that programs that support family and informal caregivers are not “one size fits all.” On the contrary, many models of care are needed to meet the complex and diverse needs of each individual. And because of this, the Foundation encourages each community to develop a network of supportive and relevant programs that build upon the experiences and knowledge of existing programs. Supportive programs that enhance neighborhood connections and provide additional support add to the effectiveness of the caring network and also help to relieve the stress on families and other informal caregivers.

To respond to this growing concern, the Weinberg Foundation launched a national RFP (Request For Proposals) for Family and Informal Caregiver Support Programs in the fall of 2008. Grants were announced in May 2009: 14 organizations were given a total of $8.2 million over the course of three years. Each grant supports the development of community partnerships and innovative approaches to assist family and friends of chronically ill and/or disabled low- and moderate-income older adults. The grants were announced after a year-long process, which included an initial review of more than 350 letters of inquiry and 46 full grant proposals. The Trustees and program directors of the Weinberg Foundation conducted the review along with a national panel of expert advisors.

As part of the RFP project, the Foundation has included a rigorous evaluation on both the national and local level to ensure that these “best practice” models are fully documented and that caregivers receive the finest services and supports.

The 14 grants were spread among programs in nine states, including California, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Maine, New Hampshire, New York, Pennsylvania, and Texas. The grantees are:

1. AgeOptions (OAK PARK, IL)
2. Alzheimer’s Disease and Related Disorders Association of Southern California (LOS ANGELES, CA)
3. The Asian Community Center (SACRAMENTO VALLEY, CA)
4. Eastern Area Agency on Aging (BANGOR, ME)
5. Isabella Geriatric Center, Upper Manhattan (NEW YORK CITY, NY)
6. Jewish Family and Children’s Service of Sarasota-Manatee (SARASOTA, FL)

PIRKE AVOT 4:1

THE HARRY AND JEANETTE WEINBERG FOUNDATION

The great Jewish philosopher Moses Maimonides wrote in “Eight Levels of Charity” that “the greatest level, above which there is no other,” is to help strengthen another by making a loan, or bringing him into business with you, or “finding him a job until...he needs no longer fall upon the mercy of the community or be in need.”

The Weinberg Foundation is committed to helping people help themselves. One very important method is to help unemployed people obtain and keep employment, preferably on a career track. The Foundation supports economically disadvantaged persons’ entry into, and long-term attachment to, the workforce and the mainstream economy by providing the “life-tools” they need to lift themselves from poverty and advance themselves into solid self-support.

The Foundation continues to support programs that increase the effectiveness of services provided to low-wage workers.

Special consideration is given to programs that support the following:

Job-readiness

Grants to service providers to support training that results in job-placement and job-retention in partnership with employers

Financial literacy

Grants to support the goal of increased financial management and assets for an individual or family

Adult entrepreneurship

Grants to train individuals in how to plan, start, and operate a small business, and grants for microloan or free loan programs to finance working poor individuals’ small business start-ups or expansions

The Foundation approved many grants nationally and globally during the past year to programs that offer soft-and hard-skills training, job coaching, job placement, and career advancement opportunities in various fields. Through multi-year general operating or program grants approved in previous fiscal years, the Foundation continued to support the operations of the following programs: The Center for Urban Families (Baltimore, MD); Baltimore Alliance for Careers in Healthcare (Baltimore, Maryland); Jewish Vocation Services (Boston, MA); Economic Empowerment for Women (Israel); the National Fund for Workforce Solutions (National Program); and more.

Upwardly Global (New York, NY): $200,000

The Foundation made a general operating grant to Upwardly Global, which provides job search skills training, acculturation coaching, one-on-one mentoring, and job placement assistance for New York City-area under-employed and unemployed immigrants who worked in skilled professions in their home countries and have been unable to access the mainstream workforce here in the United States. These business people—educators, scientists, and journalists—often find themselves working as nannies, cab drivers, security guards, and cashiers without this program’s assistance. Upwardly Global aims to place 50% of “employer ready” jobseekers within six months of completing job training. “Employer ready” means that the jobseeker has participated in a training workshop, is actively seeking employment, has demonstrated the ability to find appropriate job positions, has success with interviews, and possesses good communication skills.

Northeast Parent and Child Society, Inc.

(Schenectady, NY): $100,000

The Foundation authorized a $100,000 capital grant to support a new Career Development Center. As a child welfare agency, Northeast Parent and Child Society offers a wide array of residential, special education, family foster care, children’s mental health, and career development programs. The organization annually serves 6,300 people from 29 counties in Upstate New York. The new Career Development Center will work with at-risk youth by providing vocational services and ongoing support services, including GED programs, construction or emergency services training, job and internship placements, and assistance with enrollment in post secondary education.

Nishmat (Jerusalem, Israel): $60,000

The Foundation supported a program grant to renew support of the “Nishmat Ethiopian Women” (NEW) Program. This residential program provides low-income Ethiopian-Israeli women who have graduated from high school the skills they need to pass the university matriculation (bagrut) exams. The Ethiopian-Israeli women usually live in a Nishmat dorm with non-Ethiopian women, who help acculturate the Ethiopian women to the broader Israeli society and culture. This supportive environment helps most of the Ethiopian-Israeli women to pass the bagrut exams, get accepted to a university, successfully complete university studies with a degree, and go on successfully to masters-level degrees or good jobs. This grant is part of the Foundation’s strategy to support effective organizations that help Ethiopian-Israelis (men and women, adults and children) succeed in life and career and become successful people; to serve as excellent role models for economically disadvantaged Ethiopian-Israelis, providing hope and optimism; and once in positions of influence and power in their careers to help pave the way for other Ethiopian-Israelis to achieve the same.

Education, Children, Youth & Families

The Harry and Jeanette Weinberg Foundation aims to build economic self-sufficiency through child/family development and youth education so that those assisted are able to participate in society as self-supporting adults. The Foundation achieves this goal by tackling immediate needs of organizations, as well as building organizational capacity for programs that serve low-income youth and their families, with the intention ultimately to build economic self-support. With a focus on early childhood education, K-12 education, out-of-school opportunities, and family safety and development, the Foundation distributed nearly $10 million in 2010. In 2010, priority was given specifically to high-poverty neighborhoods in Baltimore City and Baltimore County within Maryland.

Special consideration was given to programs that support the following goals:

Early Childhood Education

Expanding children's access to quality instruction by teachers, child care providers and volunteers in early childhood learning opportunities and providing quality support to parents in being their child's "first teacher."

K-12 Education

Supplementing K-12 education in public schools with quality programs that focus on increasing literacy, mathematical, entrepreneurial and college/work readiness skills; support the recruitment, training and mentoring of able instructional leaders to guide challenging schools; and ensure that the school environment is a violence-free and safe place for children to learn. The Foundation also supports autonomous alternative governance public schools that are capable of high student performance and that help stabilize poor neighborhoods and expansion of opportunities for economically disadvantaged children to attend independent school systems that provide high quality education.

Out of School Time

Providing at-risk youth with consistent direction, motivation, and support through quality out-of-school time opportunities (after school and summer programs) that promote academic gain, career/entrepreneurship exploration, and/or personal development as well as mentoring opportunities that help foster proper emotional and personal development of youth by capable role models.

Family Safety and Development

Helping prevent child abuse/neglect or family violence and supporting treatment when such violence does occur. The Foundation also supports programs that ensure youth have a safe place to live when living with biological parents is not viable, especially those who are homeless.

2010 FUNDING HIGHLIGHTS

Cristo Rey Corporate Internship Program, Inc.
(Baltimore, MD): $1,200,000

The Foundation made a capital grant to renovate the former Holy Rosary convent and a portion of the Holy Rosary School building to accommodate up to 370 economically disadvantaged students in this private high school's college preparatory academic program. Thirteen years ago, the first Cristo Rey high school was founded in Chicago with the mission of offering a rigorous college preparatory education to underserved youth. Today, 24 schools are members of the Cristo Rey Network. The Cristo Rey Network schools provide a unique work-study curriculum, empowering students to succeed in college, work, and life. Cristo Rey's Corporate Internship Program, in partnership with the Baltimore business community, complements the school's rigorous curriculum and provides real life work experience during the school week.

New Leaders for New Schools (Baltimore, MD): $100,000

The Foundation made a general operating grant to recruit, train, and support current and former educators becoming outstanding principals of urban public schools. The program cultivates these leaders to ensure teacher effectiveness, build classroom consistency and quality, pioneer valuable learning experiences, and establish a school culture that emphasizes high expectations and a shared sense of mission and responsibility. These high-functioning environments increase the likelihood that each student can achieve his or her academic potential and continue down the road to success.

Higher Achievement (Baltimore, MD): $225,000

The Foundation made a two year grant to establish two "Higher Achievement Centers" in Baltimore City Middle Schools in the east and west sections of the City, with the aim of increasing students' grades, test scores, school attendance, and advancement into top high schools.

Higher Achievement provides 650 hours of academic enrichment time annually, offering continuous programming for four years between the 5th and 8th grades. The program is year-round, and includes a Summer Academy, After-School Academy and High School Placement Services. Higher Achievement's program provides academic opportunities centered upon a social justice-themed curriculum; highly trained and committed mentors; university stays; enrichment activities like debate and drama; and a culture of high expectations. Since its founding in 1975, the organization has served more than 10,000 middle school students and their families in low-income urban neighborhoods in the Washington, D.C. area through an academically-focused, out-of-school-time program model. Over the years, Higher Achievement has delivered statistically significant increases in school attendance, grades and standardized test scores.

Youth Renewal Fund (Israel):

$105,000 for capital and $200,000 for operating
The Foundation provided two grants to Youth Renewal Fund in Israel in 2010, supporting 5,000 children in over 10 communities throughout Israel. The operating grant is for two years and supports after school programs; single-subject, free-standing learning centers that serve different schools within a community; and in-school learning centers within several schools. The capital grant supports new construction of an English Center in Ramla to be used by multiple schools to enhance the teaching of English to meet the needs of students' various learning styles.

Basic Human Needs & Health

Even as families strive toward economic self-support, a safety net of services must exist to sustain them, especially during times of hardship. The Foundation supports programs that meet the basic needs of individuals, families, and communities while, at the same time, supporting programs aimed at helping the same people support themselves through gainful employment. The Weinberg Foundation helps people access comprehensive primary care at community health centers such as Federally Qualified Health Centers, Health Care for the Homeless Centers, and other clinics that charge uninsured patients on a sliding-fee scale based on income and that accept private insurance, Medicare and Medicaid from those so insured. The Foundation funds somatic, mental, oral, and reproductive health clinics, especially those that integrate mental health and oral health with primary care. The Foundation also supports organizations that help people secure and maintain housing, obtain nutritious food, and avoid eviction and utility shut-offs. Focused primarily in Hawaii, Maryland, and Northeastern Pennsylvania, priorities in this program area are driven by four overarching goals and several sub-goals.

People will have access to quality comprehensive primary health care, regardless of insurance status

- Preference is given to clinics that integrate behavioral and oral health along with primary health care.
- Organizations should demonstrate a history of commitment to serving the underserved and uninsured, offer patients a sliding fee scale based on income, and accept Medicaid and Medicare. The ability to leverage funds from the federal and state governments improves the financial sustainability needed to serve large numbers of patients and maintain a balanced patient mix of insured and uninsured.

People will have a safe and stable place to call home

- Provide temporary shelter in a clean and welcoming environment with the necessities of food, clothing, beds, showers, etc.
- Ensure the transition to housing for high-risk populations such as ex-offenders, veterans, and domestic violence survivors.
- Employ effective strategies that move people out of homelessness through placement into long-term housing with the necessary supportive services, especially employment training and placement. This may include provision of relocation assistance, including security deposits and furnishings.
- Construct or renovate housing for use by previously homeless individuals.

People will have access to short-term economic and social services supports during times of hardship

- Provide short-term financial assistance for utilities, rent, and other expenses to prevent eviction, loss of electricity, etc.
- Provide funding on a limited basis to free loan programs aimed at making low-income families more self-sufficient.

People will have access to sufficient and nutritious food in the most dignified way possible

- Expand the capacity of community food banks and pantries to effectively process and distribute goods.
- Increase access to fresh produce and proteins.
- Assist eligible individuals to apply for local, state, and federal food resource benefits.

2010 FUNDING HIGHLIGHTS

Baltimore Homeless Services (Baltimore, MD):

$1.8 million capital grant

The Harry and Jeanette Weinberg Housing and Resource Center will offer shelter as well as comprehensive services for up to 275 homeless men and women, 24 hours a day, year-round. Also included will be 25 convalescent care beds for fragile individuals such as those released from hospitals back into the community with no housing. Jobs, Housing, and Recovery, Inc. will operate the center and Healthcare for the Homeless will provide the clinical staff for the convalescent care unit. When the center opens in late 2010, Baltimore City's emergency response to people experiencing homelessness will be in an inviting building that is equipped specifically for the needs of this vulnerable population. Most importantly, extensive case management, including employment training and placement, will be provided by staff and community partners to assist people in overcoming their barriers and returning to self-support as quickly as possible. The Weinberg Foundation partnered with the Abell Foundation and the France-Merrick Foundation as the lead private donors who, together with city and state governments, made this building possible.

Floating Hospital (Long Island City, NY):

$300,000 capital grant

This capital grant was made to The Floating Hospital, a Federally Qualified Health Center that serves the homeless in Long Island City, Brooklyn, and the Bronx. This multi-site clinic cares for homeless women and children who often do not qualify for Medicaid. The clinic serves 36,000 unduplicated patients and is the single largest primary health care provider to homeless families in the New York City area. The clinic has multiple locations in New York family shelters. The Floating Hospital is an integrated medical home, providing mental health, oral health, primary care, pediatric care, gynecological care, health education, immunizations, and substance abuse counseling and treatment. The clinic has a nutritionist and a full-time psychiatrist. Free van transportation is offered for parents who find it hard to take baby strollers on the subway. The Floating Hospital has a contract with the Department of Juvenile Justice to provide 24/7 medical and dental service for 6,000 at-risk, inner-city teens. In New York City, 42% of those living in shelters are children, and they are the fastest growing segment of the homeless population. The Weinberg grant award went toward renovating, refurbishing, and re-equipping seven satellite clinics located with the family shelter system in the Bronx and Brooklyn. Funds were used to buy new cardiac ultrasound machines, mammography X-ray equipment, vans, diagnostic systems, baby scales, EKG machines, and more.

Baltimore Substance Abuse Systems (BSAS)

(Baltimore, MD): $120,000

This grant award went toward the implementation of an Integrated Dual Diagnosis Treatment (IDDT) team in Baltimore City for clients who have been court-ordered to receive both mental health and substance abuse treatment. This evidence-based IDDT treatment model is new for Baltimore City and will be a system-wide opportunity to learn how effective a team of mental-health and drug-treatment providers can be in assuaging the scourge of drug abuse and its accompanying recidivism and threat to public safety. This program will serve those with a documented psychiatric disorder, with a diagnosis of substance dependence, without insurance or on Medicaid or Medicare, with an IQ above 70, and with a current legal charge against them. This team, similar in breadth and depth to an Assertive Community Treatment team, consists of a team Leader, a psychiatrist, a nurse, a social worker, two case managers, two addiction counselors, and the probation officer. The need is indisputable in Baltimore City where 70,000 individuals (28,000 of whom are addicts, 17,000 of which are heroin addicts) are processed through central booking annually. BSAS will ensure fidelity to this model and will wean providers in the City away from a single type of treatment toward an integrated model of mental health and drug addiction treatments. BSAS will be the project champion and offer physician oversight of the various providers chosen. BSAS will learn new lessons that can be applied system-wide to the 45 drug programs in Baltimore City that are licensed by BSAS. The IDDT model has been endorsed by the Baltimore City Judiciary and is considered an essential new tool in assessing and treating clients referred by the Drug Court. The model has been endorsed by the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA) as a research-based best practice. The ultimate goal is reducing harm to self and others: fewer suicide attempts; fewer justice system interactions; fewer hospitalizations; reduction of or management of symptoms; more clients finding housing and employment and receiving public health insurance and longer times in treatment.

Teen Connection of Takoma Park, Inc. (Washington, D.C.):

This clinic works via a sliding-fee scale based on pay stubs, a letter from the employer (for example, nannies), or a bank statement. The fees are as low as $15 to as high as $100 for a package of well-woman services (including free contraceptives) that would cost $250 on the private market (plus the additional cost of contraception at $550 annually). Medications also include antibiotics and antivirals. Lab expenses, which can be a substantial cost to patients in other medical settings, include pap smears, urine specimens, testing for sexually transmitted infections, pregnancy testing, and blood evaluations. The staff is highly qualified and consists of a Board-Certified OB/GYN who for 20 years has provided care in a private practice. The Executive Director is a women's health nurse practitioner and the founder of Teen Connection. The Clinical Director is a seasoned nurse practitioner. The caseworker is a MSW (Masters in Social Work), and all administrative staff and clinical staff are bilingual in Spanish and English. Volunteers, recruited from surrounding universities, are students who are working toward degrees in nursing or medicine and have an interest in women's health.

This reproductive clinic provides not only "paps and pills," but also vaccines for Hepatitis B and antibiotics for infections. The goal not only is gynecological care but also disease prevention. Girls aged 15 to 19 account for a third of all cases of gonorrhea and chlamydia in the U.S. Sixty-five million Americans currently live with untreatable, sexually transmitted viral diseases such as Herpes, Human Papillomavirus (HPV), and HIV. Teen Connection has reciprocal referrals with Community Clinic, a Federally Qualified Health Clinic in Tacoma Park.

Teen Connection is open every day, including two nights a week and Saturday. The clinic offers sonograms, colposcopies, bone density screenings, and gynecological surgical procedures off site at a private ob/gyn clinic that offers pro bono and reduced fees. Another key service offered at Teen Connection, but not at most other local primary-care clinics, is the outreach social worker who is in the community and the clinic giving information and building trust. She is involved in counseling for girls involved in gangs, which typically involves high sexual activity. The incontrovertible proof of the need for this reproductive clinic is the hard fact that it served 500 women in 2001 when the clinic opened but now serves 3,000 women.

Disabilities

כִּי מְעַשָּׂה יָדָיו כָּלֶם

THEY ARE ALL THE WORK OF HIS HANDS. JOB 34:19

THE HARRY AND JEANETTE WEINBERG FOUNDATION

The Foundation's vision: Independence and integration for people with intellectual disabilities and for people with physical disabilities (including sensory disabilities).

INDEPENDENCE IN THE COMMUNITY

The Foundation supports organizations and programs that respect the independence, individual choice, and civil rights of children and adults with intellectual and physical disabilities. The Foundation supports innovative services and support systems designed to enable people with intellectual and physical disabilities to live a life of their own choosing in the community—not in segregated, institutional, or workshop settings. “A life of their own choosing” means achieving independence, self-respect, and self-satisfaction at school, home, and work to the greatest degree practical.

INTEGRATION IN THE COMMUNITY

The Foundation encourages people without disabilities to have personal experiences with people who have intellectual and physical disabilities. One mother of a child with disabilities said: “My son now has all the rights the Americans with Disabilities Act could possibly secure for him, but he still does not have a friend.” The Foundation seeks programs demonstrating that people with and without disabilities want to spend time with each other (social networks), such as social programs in the community (where people meet), not in day centers. “Community” is an experience, not merely a location. The Foundation seeks programs designed to build relationships and prevent loneliness and isolation.

The Foundation funds four groups of children and adults with disabilities:

Intellectual disabilities, including the broad range of autism spectrum disorders (Asperger’s Disorder, Pervasive Developmental Disorder – Not Otherwise Specified, “classic” autism), mental retardation, epilepsy, various language delays, Fragile X Syndrome, Down Syndrome, and Fetal Alcohol Syndrome.

Mental health ranging from emotional and behavior problems to severe mental illnesses. The treatment of co-occurring intellectual disabilities and mental health issues is also a priority for the Foundation.

Learning differences in children, especially Math and English learning problems, such as dyscalculia and dyslexia, and early interventions designed to mainstream children as soon as possible. The Foundation has a funding preference for tutoring programs and learning centers for those with learning differences in Jewish Day Schools in Baltimore.

People with physical and sensory disabilities—generally those with “normal” intelligence—but who have cerebral palsy, paralysis, blindness, hearing loss, or other primarily physical impairments. Programs and projects are favored that help these individuals attain self-support to the greatest degree practical, including employment in the mainstream economy (as opposed to sheltered workshops).

GEOGRAPHICAL FOCUS

Those applying for a grant should pay special attention to the Foundation’s geographical priorities.

Intellectual disabilities: The Foundation will consider requests relating to intellectual disabilities throughout the United States and Israel. The Foundation gives first priority to community-based, direct-service providers in Maryland, Northeastern Pennsylvania, Hawaii, and Israel. Applicants from outside these priority areas will be given serious consideration if they have ongoing, innovative programs that do not exist in these four geographic areas and can be replicated there.

Physical Disabilities: The Foundation will consider requests from community-based direct-service providers who serve people with physical disabilities only in the Foundation's priority areas of Maryland, Northeastern Pennsylvania, Hawaii, and Israel.

GOALS

For individuals with disabilities, among the groups described above, the Foundation has 11 goals:

Housing (capital grants for renovation and new construction) The Foundation funds safe, affordable, accessible housing integrated into the community—both independent and supported housing, especially scattered-site projects (shared housing, preferably no more than four people per home) and innovative, replicable models for increasing the availability of housing, both rented or owned by a person with a disability.

Early intervention for children with intellectual disabilities, especially the autistic spectrum disorders (ages 0 to 5) The Foundation seeks early-education programs that show positive outcomes and use evidence-based methods. Education programs can be in self-contained settings as long as the long-term goal is mainstreaming and integration. The Foundation funds only evidence-based programs that have multi-disciplinary, credentialed staff; that have low student/teacher ratios; and that are tailored to the specific needs of individual children. Family involvement and home-based programs also are weighted heavily in the Foundation's analysis.

Community-based services for those with psychiatric illnesses The Foundation funds psychiatric rehab programs, mental health centers, jail and emergency-room diversion programs, mobile crisis teams, and "clubhouses."

Early intervention for children with learning differences via tutoring Programs that are both "pull-out" and "plug-in" and have the goal of mainstreaming.

Jobs The Foundation supports customized employment in the community, meaning that time is invested in the individual to determine the person's abilities, interest, and willingness to work and only then to identify appropriate jobs. The Foundation does not want to support programs that merely find a job—any job—with an employer and then "place" the person in that slot. In other words, the Foundation supports projects that promote self-determination in employment. The Foundation has a funding preference for transitional-age youth (18 to 22) who are leaving special education settings and want to work or volunteer.

The Foundation also will fund organizations that help develop businesses owned by adults with disabilities. The Foundation will fund training classes for adults with disabilities, to assist in finding the right business for them, develop a business plan, and learn about start-up and financial issues.

The Foundation's Trustees will select two innovative, social-contentment programs annually These will be integrated socialization programs in the community so that "typically developed" people can spend time with people with disabilities, not in day centers but in libraries, gyms, residences, coffee houses, and community centers. Depending on the disabilities involved, programs could include cooking or yoga classes, hiking clubs, inclusive summer camps, movie clubs, music and dance lessons, community service days, environmental clean-up days—wherever people with and without disabilities can meet. The challenge is not so much what the public can do for those with disabilities as it is whether the public can include people with disabilities in public life.

If a summer camp provides sessions for children with any kind of disability—physical, sensory, or intellectual—the camp is eligible for funding.

Training of Professional Staff in Evidence-Based Treatment Methods The Foundation will fund tutoring or therapy programs for those with learning or intellectual disabilities (especially autism) but only evidence-based therapies supported by replicated and validated research such as Applied Behavior Analysis or the TEACCH program. Such therapies are driven by outcomes. The Foundation's focus is on training at service providers' facilities, not at colleges or universities, which by charter, the Foundation is prohibited from funding.

Life Planning The greatest worry for parents of those with intellectual disabilities is “What will happen to my son or daughter after I am gone?” The Foundation seeks projects that address life planning for the future, including the legal knowledge necessary to face an uncertain future. A life plan developed by attorneys, family members, the son or daughter, and service providers can offer some peace of mind for families, even if some of those services are not yet available in the community.

Entitlement Demystifiers and Access to Entitlements

Families need the services of entitlement demystifiers and legal experts at disability law centers and legal aid bureaus, where families can have an advocate to represent them in acquiring needed services. The Foundation recognizes the importance of legal assistance in identifying and accessing entitlements such as Medicaid and in helping parents with due process hearings and Individualized Education Plans (IEPs).

Service Coordination and Navigation of the Disabilities System (Case Managers)

The Foundation recognizes the need to increase service coordination at the time of diagnosis for families who have children with intellectual disabilities or mental illness. Case management to identify quality providers of direct services and to disseminate information to parents is crucial.

Assistive Technology as a treatment tool for those with intellectual disabilities

This technology includes robotic-assisted physical therapy for children with cerebral palsy, web-based neuropsychological testing, augmentative communication devices, and computerized safety systems in the home. Durable medical equipment such as rehab equipment for the home, home modifications, and orthotics will not be funded.

Kfar Tikva in Kiryat Tivon, Israel: $250,000

This capital grant award is for the purchase of one new home and two apartments in Kiryat Tivon so that eight older adults with disabilities can move from the Kfar Tikva Village into the surrounding community to live as independently as possible. Kfar Tikva has multiple group homes in the village, but also rents apartments for couples with disabilities who want to live “off campus.” Now, Kfar Tikva is relocating village residents into the community as an experiment in integration and independence—the Foundation’s goals for people with intellectual disabilities. The eight lucky residents who will live in Kiryat Tivon in a brand new bedroom community will be able to work in the Village or in the community. This home will have four residents in a house, which is much lower than the 8-24 resident norm in Israel. Kfar Tikva teaches people with intellectual disabilities about love and intimacy among other topics. The Village has placed twenty couples in apartments on and off campus in rented apartments. The median age of the population is 50, most have lost their parents, all have severe intellectual and emotional disabilities, and 85% are on medications. The option for older adults with intellectual disabilities to live off-site is a life-changing experience to help enhance their freedom of choice, independence, self-determination, and a life without loneliness.

University of Maryland Medical System Foundation: $135,000

This capital grant will help to purchase three newly renovated row houses for the supervised, residential housing program of Harbor City Unlimited for Baltimore City residents with severe mental illness and co-occurring substance abuse disorder. Harbor City Unlimited is a Division of Community Psychiatry at the University of Maryland Medical System. Harbor City is a residential rehabilitation program and a psychiatric rehabilitation program that offers transitional, supportive housing; permanent housing; and psychiatric and psychological treatments and counseling for those with severe mental illnesses. Three hundred clients are served annually. Harbor City and the University of Maryland Medical System Foundation are taking advantage of the soft real estate market during this recession to purchase newly renovated row houses in Baltimore City at bargain prices. By buying row houses, Harbor City eliminates rents and annual rent increases and has houses in move-in condition. These new row houses are cleaner, safer, and provide a home that mirrors the self-respect and independence that Harbor City wants to inculcate in these adults. Harbor City offers intensive supervision and oversight to keep clients in their homes and provides wrap-around services such as medication management, money management, safety, personal hygiene, social skills, home maintenance, and community mobility. Without safe, affordable housing, many clients would be homeless or in institutions.

The Association for Children at Risk, Tel Aviv, Israel: $100,000

This grant will fund the first program in Israel to use Cognitive Behavior Therapy to treat young adults with high-functioning autism spectrum disorders – also called “Asperger’s syndrome.” Cognitive Behavior Therapy is an evidence-based method and will be led by Dr. Golan (a student of the Cambridge, U.K. autism master, Dr. Baron-Cohen) and Dr. Hamiel, the head of the Cognitive Behavioral Unit at Tel Aviv Community Mental Health Center. The Association for Children at Risk, based in Tel Aviv, was founded in 1990 and is an autism service provider that runs a Center and 75 kindergartens for children with autism ages 18 months to 7 years and treats 600 children throughout Israel. This new program at the Association will be the first to offer Cognitive Behavioral Therapy, including social skills training, anger management, effective communication, coping with anxiety, obsessions, and depression, and parenting skills for parents of individuals with high-functioning autism spectrum disorder. Personal tutors will be available for consolidation of therapeutic successes and for generalization into everyday life at home and school. The program also has a training component to teach other service providers about research-supported cognitive behavior therapies. The program’s goal is to assess and treat 150 children and their families per year. Many high-functioning autism kids are misdiagnosed as mental health patients. It is important to introduce evidence-based treatments to address the unique difficulties this population has in social communication, obsessions, sensory difficulties, and various co-morbidities such as obsessive-compulsive disorder, anxiety disorder, depression, and behavior difficulties. This program and the Asperger’s clinic will be the first of their kind in Israel.

General Community Support

אנחנו עם. אחד העם.

WE ARE A PEOPLE. ONE PEOPLE. THEODOR HERZL

THE HARRY AND JEANETTE WEINBERG FOUNDATION

For the Weinberg Foundation, “General Community Support” includes grants not within the other substantive grant categories. General Community Support relates to Jewish causes, non-sectarian community development, renovation or construction of affordable housing, neighborhood revitalization, and community improvement projects in low-income neighborhoods. The Foundation makes grants in the General Community Support category exclusively in Maryland, Northeastern Pennsylvania, Hawaii, Israel, the Former Soviet Union and other select overseas Jewish communities.

FORMER SOVIET UNION AND EASTERN EUROPE

Virtually all of the Foundation’s international grantmaking is targeted at helping economically disadvantaged Jews, primarily in Israel and the republics of the Former Soviet Union. The Foundation continues to work through the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee (JDC) to support its efforts at “Jewish Renewal”—the effort to renew Jewish life, Jewish religious practice (without regard to denomination), and Jewish communal activity for Jews living in the Former Soviet Union (FSU), where for 70 years the iron fist of communism prohibited and punished any open expression of religious belief or practice. The Foundation also supports such work in Eastern Europe to build the leadership and infrastructures necessary to develop greater communal self-sufficiency.

ISRAEL

The Foundation was a partner in the Operation Promise campaign of Jewish Federations of North America (formerly United Jewish Communities) that focused on older adults in the Former Soviet Union and Ethiopians in Ethiopia and Israel. Through the Foundation’s final payment this year of $600,000 towards its $1.8 million grant, organizations such as the Ethiopian National Project were able to provide scholastic assistance, neighborhood outreach centers, and family/community empowerment leadership workshops to Ethiopians acculturating to their new homes in Israel.

MARYLAND

Each year, the Foundation makes a lump-sum grant to the annual campaign of THE ASSOCIATED: Jewish Community Federation of Baltimore (The Associated). The Associated raises funds for all its agencies, many of which focus on financially disadvantaged individuals, both Jewish and non-Jewish. This year's annual campaign grant to the Associated was $3 million, just under 10% of the funds raised from the Associated's annual campaign. Throughout its history, the Weinberg Foundation has maintained a close relationship with The Associated. Through special initiatives, in addition to its annual gift, the Foundation also has helped The Associated and its agencies extend a caring hand to the area's most vulnerable citizens. The Foundation also issued a capital challenge grant that could result in a payment as high as $8 million, depending on the amount The Associated raises in matching collections. All the capital funds raised would be applied to reduce substantially or eliminate capital debt on the many buildings owned by the organization.

The Foundation continued its support to Healthy Neighborhoods, Inc., to support a network of 15 community organizations committed to creating home ownership, improving property conditions, and building equity for longtime Baltimore working-family homeowners. A variety of other grants in this category were paid, including a the Downtown Partnership Foundation of Baltimore to support its Clean Sweep Ambassador workforce program and Home Partnership, Inc. (Joppatowne, Maryland) to increase its capacity to develop multi-family and older adult housing projects for poor clients. This year, a grant was authorized to the Baltimore Community Foundation on behalf of the Police Foundation Fund to complete necessary building repairs and capital improvements to the Police Academy's Public Safety Training Facility in Pimlico.

NORTHEASTERN PENNSYLVANIA

Several grants in the category of general community support were made in the Scranton area. The Foundation made a $600,000 capital grant to United Neighborhood Community Development Corporation to assist in developing and renovating the historical Harriet Beecher Stowe School into 18 general occupancy apartments for poor individuals and families. A $150,000 grant was made to the United Way of Lackawanna County to assist low-income individuals with emergency needs.

HAWAII

A $500,000 general operating 1:1 challenge grant was made to support Friends of Hawaii Charities, which focuses on funding specific operational programs to qualifying Hawaii charities that make a significant impact in assisting Hawaii's poor. A $90,000 award was made to Aloha United Way to support the 2009 Weinberg Fellows Program for executive directors of Hawaiian nonprofits that serve the poor and needy.

THE HARRY AND JEANETTE WEINBERG FOUNDATION

Throughout his life, Harry Weinberg was guided by his devotion to the highest ideals of his Jewish faith and to the well-being and survival of the Jewish people.

THE HARRY AND JEANETTE WEINBERG FOUNDATION AND JEWISH FEDERATIONS

One of the primary ways the Weinberg Foundation has remained true to Harry Weinberg's vision is through its support of the Jewish federations that serve as a focal point of most North American Jewish communities. These federations operate a network of humanitarian, social service, recreational, and educational agencies.

The Weinberg Foundation's support of the Jewish federation movement has included generous grants to fund capital improvements, provide social and humanitarian services to older Jews and others in need, and strengthen the quality of Jewish communal life. Since 1990, a few of the recipients have been:

- The Associated: Jewish Community Federation of Baltimore
- Durham-Chapel Hill Jewish Federation
- Jewish Federation of Delaware
- Raleigh-Cary Jewish Federation (North Carolina)
- United Jewish Federation of Pittsburgh
- Westchester Jewish Community Services
- Jewish Community Federation of Richmond
- Jewish Federation of Greater Atlanta
- Jewish Federation of Greater Clifton-Passaic
- Jewish Federation of Greater Hartford
- Jewish Federation of Greater Indianapolis
- Jewish Federation of Greater Kansas City
- Jewish Federation of Greater Los Angeles
- Jewish Federation of Greater San Jose
- Jewish Federation of Greater Seattle
- Jewish Federation of Greater Washington
- Jewish Federation of Greater Wilkes-Barre
- Jewish Federation of Northeastern Pennsylvania
- Jewish Federation of Metropolitan Chicago
- Jewish Federation of St. Joseph Valley, Indiana
- UJA Federation of New York
- And many more

THE HARRY AND JEANETTE WEINBERG FOUNDATION AND THE ASSOCIATED

For several decades, the Weinberg Foundation has maintained a close partnership with The Associated: Jewish Community Federation of Baltimore. Since 1990, the Foundation has always made the largest single gift to The Associated's annual campaign. The Foundation's most recent annual gift was $3 million. The Foundation's gift to The Associated is one of the largest single gifts made by any donor to any of the North American Jewish Federations.

In a partnership that together shares a mission—to provide aid and opportunity so that every community member is able to live in dignity—The Associated and the Foundation have created a caring, learning, and involved community that seeks social justice for all.

Through special initiatives, in addition to its annual gift, the Foundation has also provided opportunities for The Associated and its agencies to extend a caring hand to the most vulnerable citizens. For example, support for older adults has included the creation of affordable housing for seniors in the new Weinberg Village buildings in the ever-growing community in Owings Mills, a Baltimore suburb. This year alone, commitments of more than $10 million will fund projects and programs including The Associated's annual campaign, The Associated-Weinberg Foundation Jewish Day School Initiative (which provides $2 million annually for scholarships for students whose families could not otherwise afford the tuition), Jewish Community Services, and CHAI: Comprehensive Housing Assistance, Inc. (which provides housing for older adults) among others. The Foundation also has made a commitment of $8 million to The Associated's capital campaign.

In partnership with The Associated, the Foundation has supported many successful projects and programs on behalf of the Jewish community.

THE HARRY AND JEANETTE WEINBERG FOUNDATION AND THE AMERICAN JEWISH JOINT DISTRIBUTION COMMITTEE (JDC)

While Harry Weinberg was alive and continuing through today, at every point of crisis and in turbulent times, the Weinberg Foundation has stood with the JDC, providing rescue and relief, hope and renewal, to distressed or endangered Jews around the world.

In FY10, the Foundation provided $19,060,000 to JDC for its work in the Former Soviet Union, Israel, Argentina, India and Eastern Europe through 13 different grants.

Through support of the JDC, the Foundation has:

- Provided food and medicine to Holocaust survivors in Eastern Europe
- Supported more than 100,000 destitute older Jews in the Former Soviet Union
- Built and enriched Jewish community centers and revitalized Jewish life in the re-emerging Jewish communities of the Former Soviet Union
- Provided welfare and resources for Jewish Renewal in Asia, Africa, and Central and Eastern Europe
- Assisted thousands of Jewish families devastated by the collapse of the Argentine economy

In Israel, the Foundation formed a vibrant partnership with JDC's ESHEL program to improve the lives of frail older adults. This partnership has been instrumental in building, renovating, enlarging, and supporting homes for poor older adults, day care centers, sheltered housing, respite care, and education and employment centers. The Foundation also supports TEVET job-training programs through the JDC (various employment initiatives for those with and without disabilities, immigrant populations, and STRIVE programs). In addition, a special grant to Beseva Tova—a program for Israel's older adult population living in poverty—has financed services to more than 4,000 aged Israelis. More than 100,000 elderly Israelis have directly benefited from programs and services made possible by the Foundation, and many more have benefited from special projects such as consultation services, health promotion videos, and publications aimed at enhancing the welfare and dignity of this vulnerable population.

On the following page is a summary schedule of the comparative financial position of the Foundation as of February 28, 2010 and 2009. The financial statements of the Foundation have been audited by Gorfine, Schiller & Gardyn, P.A., a regional certified public accounting firm.

The increase in the Foundation's assets mirrors the overall rebound of the equity markets from the 12-year low reached early in the first month of the fiscal year. The Foundation's investments in real property have remained relatively unchanged for both of the last two fiscal years.

During the fiscal year, the Foundation made charitable distributions totaling $98,023,226. Those charitable distributions exceed the minimum annual five percent of the average fair market value of its assets as required of private foundations in accordance with United States Tax Law. The total charitable distributions made since the death of Harry Weinberg 19 years ago now exceeds $1.4 billion. The expenses incurred for charitable purposes not including the Weinberg Fellows Program, which is a direct charitable activity, are a smaller percent of total distributions than the majority of other large private foundations. This very low expense ratio permits a greater allocation to charitable grants.

The Board of Trustees supervises the Foundation's financial investments, which includes both broad based market funds and direct security investments in selected market segments. During the year, the Foundation has made a substantial change in the management of its financial investments. Commencing at the death of Harry Weinberg, the Foundation had utilized an investment consulting firm to assist in setting investment policy, selecting specific investment managers, and monitoring the performance of those managers. After reviewing various alternatives, the Board decided to select several experienced firms with excellent reputations and outstanding investment records to each manage a portion of the stock and bond portfolio. After a series of meetings with a number of firms, four were chosen. The Trustees discussed the Foundation's investment goals and objectives with each selected firm and reviewed that firm's proposed investment allocation plans. In addition, one of those firms was selected to manage the Foundation's alternative investments. A revised Investment Policy Statement for the Foundation was adopted, reflecting those investment plans. The Board of Trustees receives regular reports of investment performance and has begun a schedule of twice annual update meetings with each manager to discuss their observations on the general market conditions and to review specific performance.

The Foundation's Board also manages substantial real property holdings which are owned either directly or through title-holding subsidiaries. A majority of these holdings are located in Hawaii and are leased to commercial and retail tenants. While some individual tenants continue to be challenged by difficult market conditions, rental occupancy rates remain high due to the efforts of the real estate staff in the Honolulu office. A small portion of the holdings is vacant land in various stages of planning for future rental use or held for long-term capital appreciation.

The actions of the Board of Trustees of the Harry and Jeanette Weinberg Foundation reflect a strong commitment to the charitable goals of our founders. Those efforts are tempered solely by our responsibility to preserve and maintain the assets placed under our stewardship.

Report of The Real Estate Department

Ever since its creation in 1959 by Harry Weinberg, the Harry and Jeanette Weinberg Foundation, Inc., has owned and managed an ever-increasing real estate portfolio. Today, the Foundation, directly and through various nonprofit subsidiaries, owns and manages a real estate portfolio appraised at approximately $772 million, a substantial portion of the Foundation's overall asset value of $2.0 billion. Most of that real estate is located in the State of Hawaii, and the remainder is on the mainland U.S., mostly in the Baltimore Metropolitan Area. The Hawaii real estate is managed by the Foundation's Honolulu, Hawaii office, and the Mainland real estate is managed by the Foundation's Owings Mills, Maryland office.

Most of the Foundation's real estate portfolio is commercial and industrial in nature—retail and wholesale space leased to business tenants. The foundation staff have many years of experience managing real estate. The Foundation's general approach to its real estate is to preserve, enhance, and create value, as appropriate. In the fiscal year ending February 28, 2010, the Foundation and its subsidiaries earned net real estate-related income and capital gains of $48 million, as a result of these real estate activities.

The Foundation believes, based on its own experience and the advice of independent, external investment experts, that its real estate investments provide a valuable balance to its overall investment portfolio. As real estate values and returns generally are not "correlated" with stock and bond returns, it often can be the case that the former remain stable when the latter are volatile. Key to this beneficial real estate "hedge" is the lack of "leverage" in the Foundation's real estate portfolio; the Foundation owns all of its real estate without debt. Real estate accounts for approximately 40% of the Foundation's total assets.

The Foundation continues actively to seek appropriate, new real estate opportunities in the mainland, United States. In FY08, a Baltimore City commercial property was purchased with a partner, and in FY09, a Baltimore County commercial property was purchased with another partner. On the mainland U.S., the Foundation recently has invested with three private real estate investment groups in a variety of "fund-type" arrangements to diversify further the Foundation's real estate holdings.

As always, the Foundation's reason for all of its investment activities of all types is to increase its asset base and enhance its investment returns and thus to increase the funds available for grantmaking.

Weinberg Fellows Program

The Harry and Jeanette Weinberg Fellows Program is a leadership development program for executive directors of public charities serving primarily disadvantaged residents of Maryland. This program was started in Hawaii by the Foundation and, after nine years of successful implementation, was replicated in Maryland. Intended to help executive directors become more effective in leading their organizations, the program provides hands-on, practical, interactive sessions focused on key elements of nonprofit management; exploration of issues important to agency leaders; the chance to meet and form long-term relationships with peers; and opportunities to identify and connect to a rich network of other helpful resources. During the year, the program convened several gatherings of the Weinberg Fellows to discuss various management and leadership issues.

In addition, last year the Foundation held the Annual Weinberg Fellows Conference, where the leadership award recognized Dana Stein, Executive Director of Civic Works. Civic Works received an unrestricted grant for $30,000 for results achieved through the non-profit's green programs. The purpose of the leadership award is to encourage the close to 200 Weinberg Fellow alumni to utilize their program-related learning to improve the lives of the people they serve and to create effective collaborations among Weinberg Fellows organizations.

The following 16 executive directors in the Baltimore area participated in a series of three overnight retreats and graduated from the program in September 2010.
