Funding Collaborative Seeks Proposals for Summer Programs Serving Baltimore Youth

Baltimore (November 6, 2020) – The Baltimore Summer Funding Collaborative (SFC) is now accepting applications for summer 2021 programs. Now in its seventh year, the SFC works to expand summer enrichment opportunities for young people in Baltimore City. Collaborative members currently include: the Abell Foundation, the Annie E. Casey Foundation, Bloomberg Philanthropies, Clayton Baker Trust, Constellation, Family League of Baltimore, France-Merrick Foundation, The Harry and Jeanette Weinberg Foundation, The Hinkey-Benson Family Fund, Lockhart Vaughan Foundation, and Under Armour.

For the past six years, the SFC has committed over $3 million annually to expand learning, recreation, and college and career readiness opportunities in the city, awarding a total of $16.8 million since 2015. When children are disengaged from learning and enrichment over the summer months, they can lose up to three months of knowledge and skills gained during the previous school year. High-quality summer programming has been proven to help reduce this learning loss or “summer slide.” Due to the COVID-19 pandemic and the learning disruptions that have occurred as a result, the need for engaging, enriching, and supportive summer programming is even more important. SFC members are committed to ensuring that Baltimore City youth can access programs, either in the virtual setting or in-person and following public health guidance, that allow them to learn and grow during the summer months and prepare them for success throughout the year.

The members of the Collaborative share a common goal to fund high-quality summer programs, whether virtual or in-person, that serve youth from families with low incomes in Baltimore City. Using a common application and review process, member organizations make their own funding decisions. Applicants can learn more about funder priorities at the SFC website below.

To be considered for funding, summer programs must promote academic, social, and emotional growth in children and youth and strive to be inclusive of students of all abilities. Applicants must primarily serve children and youth from low-income families who live in Baltimore City and have a plan to serve healthy meals to program participants, if operating for four or more hours per day with in-person programming. The deadline for applications is 5 p.m., Friday, December 11, 2020. Potential applicants are encouraged to attend an optional virtual info session to ask questions about the application, requirements, and expectations for summer 2021:

- Monday, November 16, 2020, 2 – 3:30 PM via Zoom

- Tuesday, November 17, 2020, 6 – 7:30 PM via Zoom
